BLACK HAND WAS IN EVIDENCE IN DARK, ENIGMATICAL AFFRAY

Family Astounded and Perplexed on Hearing Riots of Noises Followed by a Shot.

FOUR ARRESTS FOLLOWED

When the Clouds Began to Roll
Away and Revealed a Startling
State of Affairs.

There were sounds of revelry by night; a crash, yells, screams, a shot, shouts of fire, window glass clashing, doors slamming, cursing, shuffling and then—all was quiet again. It occurred last night about ten o'clock in the kitchen of the Burt home in North Perkins street. The family was in the front part of the house and if an earthquake had been visited upon them they could not have been more shocked and perplexed. The riot of noise lasted for about one minute. Neighbors were summoned and when some men arrived upon the scene an investigation was instituted.

It is difficult to describe just what really did occur, how it occurred and why it occurred. To begin with, the Burts have a colored domestic—Florence Solsberry by name, and a striking Amazon she is. She hails from Carthage and apparently was as quiet, peaceful and inoffensive as a lamb—the Quaker maiden, some called her. It is around this character that the story must be told as the plot lines are closely woven about her.

When the first crash was heard naturally those in close proximity thought a robbery was being committed. Then when the scuffle came and later a shot, this fear was strengthened. Members of the household were not nudly alarmed until they heard the cry of "fire." Then they set about to learn the why of all the hullabaloo. Those who rushed into the kitchen saw a sorry spectacle. A screen had been torn off, the telephone was wrenched from its position on the wall and was lying on the floor; blood spots everywhere and furniture turned topsy-turvy. It looked like nothing less than a murder had been committed. No one could be found about the place; that's what made the solution more intricate and impossible. The girl was summoned on being found in the maid's room upstairs, but she pleaded ignorance of the whole affray and said she was dressing when she heard the awful racket.

A number of men in the neighborhood took up the fragments of evidence at hand and tried to solve the mystery. But the farther they went into the matter the more complicated it grew. One man said he saw two men run down an alley after the shot was fired. A search was made in the various sheds and barns in the neighborhood but it proved fruitless.

Officer Pea was summoned and spent several hours trying to get a line on "some good clues," but he failed humorously. His arrival frightened the family equally as much as the first incident. It was most picturesque, but had the breath of metropolitan police system about it. As members of the family were seated about on the front veranda discussing the affair, they peered out into the blackness of night and there in the garden, skipping from tree to tree like a great jack o' lantern was a bright ball of fire. It might have been the headlight of a motor car which had lost its way in the night, for all they knew. But they could not understand it.

"Who's there?" one of them demanded.

"An officer," came back a curt reply.

"What?" they asked again. "An officer of the law," came back a voice in a stentorian tone.

It was Policeman Bill Pea. In his hand he held a huge dark lantern—and held it high above his head, like Liberty enlightening the world.

An office knife which had been found on the floor was promptly given to the policeman and he took it with a smile of satisfaction—as much as to say, "A ha, I have a clew—I have them foiled."

The next half hour he spent in searching about the house, in closets, under beds, upstairs and downstairs, and in the maid's chamber. But all of no avail. This, mind you, was about an hour after the thing happened.

The officer assured the family that they might retire with the assurance and peace of mind that he would solve the great mystery. "I'm fixed to stay up all night," he said, "you folks just go on to bed. I have some pretty good clews and I think I will know all about this by morning." And he did. City Marshal Price arrested and put four people in jail within a few hours this morning after he started in on the case. But much credit is due Officer Pea. He stayed up until the oil gave out in his dark lantern. Then like the foolish virgins he was obliged to give up the ghost.

This morning City Marshal Price arrested Florence Solsberry, the colored domestic, Minnie Brown, colored, and her brother, Frank Brown. Later, Jesse Craig, white, the nineteen-year-old son of J. A. Craig, the First street grocer, was arrested and put in jail. All were charged with complicity in the case.

The Solsberry girl stoutly contended that she did not know anything about the affair, but when City Marshal Price started to march her off to jail, after a series of lusty screams, she broke down and began to tell the story. Later it was substantiated when Minnie Brown was

HONEY CROP TO BE SHORT THIS YEAR

Owners of Bees Say Wet Weather
Has Ruined All Prospects
For "Sweet Stuff."

HAVE TO BUY SUGAR FOR BEES

No honey on your bread next winter. This is the verdict of men who keep bees in Rush county. This will be due, they say to the continued rains, which washed the honey from the clover blossoms and flowers as it accumulated, leaving none for the bees to gather. One man, who owns many stands of bees, says he will have to buy two barrels of sugar to keep the bees from starving next winter. That looks pretty discouraging to people who like the delicacy, when the bees cannot gather enough to support themselves.

PEA IMPLICATES FIVE OTHER BOYS

Told Straightforward Story, But Denied the Theft of the Brass—
Said he Was in Carthage.

RELEASED ON BOND TODAY

Whereabouts of Other Members of
the Gang Are Known—Arrests Will Follow Soon.

Chase Pea, better known as "Monk," who was arrested yesterday, charged with being implicated in stealing brass fixtures from an old saw mill engine south of Carthage Wednesday afternoon was taken before Mayor Cowing today, where he waived a preliminary hearing. Mayor Cowing fixed his bond at $100 which was signed by the boy's father.

Pea admits being with the gang that made away with the brass junk after tearing the engine apart, but he stoutly denies that he had any hand in the affair. He claims he went with the crowd on what he thought a pleasure jaunt and says it never entered his mind that they were bent on stealing. Young Pea is not a bad sort and while his associates have not always been of the best, still his name was never before mentioned in connection with any deviltry.

It is understood that he has told the officers a straightforward story of the theft and many others which have occurred within the past year or two. He told one of the farmers, who came down from Carthage yesterday where he could find most of the brass. When discovered the boys put what they could in their pockets and then took a large pile and covered it with debris near an old tree.

Pea implicates a number of boys, none of them bearing a very good reputation. It is understood that they have left the city but their whereabouts is known and they will probably be arrested and brought back here.

WOMAN WAS FINED IN SQUIRE'S COURT

Mrs. John R. Gray, Who Publicly
Whipped Omer Hadley Wednesday, Paid $23.00.

RUMORS WERE BIG FACTOR

Mrs. John R. Gray was fined ten dollars and costs, amounting in all to twenty-three dollars, in Justice Cates' court in Connersville yesterday after an affidavit had been filed by Omer Hadley, whom the woman had publicly horse whipped at a sale near Orange Wednesday. On the stand the defendant said that she was angry at Hadley because of the interference with the rural carrier, who it was rumored stopped at the Gray home when delivering mail at too long intervals. She was also incensed at the rumor of the suit being filed to set aside the deed of Peden Gray, of whose estate Hadley was administrator.

Mr. North interviewed a number of prominent citizens and talked over the prospect of a bid from New Castle. There is no better point for such an institution.

TO CONNECT WITH EASTERN TERMINUS

Traction Line Being Run From Cincinnati to Meet I. & C. at Connersville.

PURELY PRIVATE ENTERPRISE

The Martin Werk company of Cincinnati is laying out a line from Cincinnati to Harrison, intending to connect with a terminus of the I. & C. which now ends its two branches at Connersville and Greensburg, says the Brookville Democrat.

The developers of this road, the Werks, have their own money to invest and are not parading with intent to get stock subscriptions.

Not only are the surveys being fully completed, but options on right of way are being quietly secured.

SOME DOUBT ABOUT NEW TRACTION LINE

Eastern Capitalists do Not Think
Well of Short Line of Road.

WOULD EXTEND TO ANDERSON

Ex-Senator L. P. Newby, who was in New York last week in the interest of the proposed north and south interurban line through Knightstown, has returned home, says the Knightstown Banner. He does not seem very sanguine about the road. Eastern capitalists do not think well of a short line of road and he said unless the line could at least be extended to Anderson from Rushville there was little use talking about the matter. There is plenty of available money with which to build the line, but the men with the ever-ready "long-green" wish to be assured that the road will be a paying venture. Then they will be willing to finance the project.

WHOLE AFFAIR IS MYSTERIOUS

Coat Containing Deed and a $2100
Note Taken From John Gartin's Porch Last Night.

FRUITLESS SEARCH WAS MADE

Neighbors Saw Strange Woman Return Wearing Apparel This Morning.

Carelessly throwing his coat over the railing of the veranda of his home in North Harrison street, yesterday evening, John Gartin walked into the house and thought nothing of the wearing apparel until late in the evening at bed time. He returned to the veranda to get his coat only to discover that it was gone. Then he suddenly realized that the inside coat pocket contained a note for $2100 and a deed for some property.

When the fact began to dawn on him that he had lost the valuables, he was greatly perturbed. He immediately aroused the neighborhood and questioned them as to the whereabouts of his coat. No one seemed to know anything about the affair and it was all shrouded in mystery. No one had seen any suspicious characters in the neighborhood and as the hours passed the mystery deepened.

Gartin finally retired at a late hour with his mind fully made up that he had lost the note and the deed. He went to bed not to sleep, but to spend a restless night trying to think of some clue to locate his coat and incidentally its contents. He arose in the morning with a faint hope in his breast that something would lead him to the discovery of the articles. Early this morning he started the search, and returned home shortly after nine o'clock and there found the coat lying on the veranda in about the same place where he had left it.

Gartin was perplexed and after inquiring of a neighbor, found that a strange woman, her face concealed under a large sunbonnet, had put the coat back in place about nine o'clock. She walked quickly away from that district before anyone could discover her identity. The deed and the note had evidently not been disturbed as they were in the same pocket where he had placed them.

The whole circumstance is surrounded by mystery and the peculiar part of it is that Gartin does not want to solve it. Now that he has the valuables back, he seems very much unconcerned about the matter and does not care to learn the name of the strange woman. It is thought that there is more behind the affair than has yet come to the light of day. Gartin is soon to leave for an extended trip through the West.

SLAIN BY BURGLARS

Residence at Flatbush, L. I., the Scene of a Tragedy.

New York, July 9.—The police are holding two shoeless men, one wounded in the thigh and in the arm, charged with the murder of Mrs. Sophia Staber, wife of George Staber, a New York importer of paper, in whose residence at Flatbush, L. I., there occurred a battle with burglars in which Mrs. Staber met death. The men say they are Carlo Giro, born in Trieste, Austria, and "John Smith." The latter speaks with a strong German accent and was the one wounded. He was operated upon and, being told that he might not live, was urged to tell the whole truth. He admitted, the police say, that it was a bullet from his pistol, discharged in a struggle with Mrs. Staber's son George, that killed her. Giro was picked up first after the burglary while trying to beg or buy a pair of shoes to replace those he had removed while entering the house. Smith was found hidden under a bush, bleeding, about a mile from the Staber house. George Staber, a son, has identified both men as those who entered the house. Mrs. Staber was shot dead while standing in her bedroom door.

STRIKE BREAKERS KEPT UNDER GUARD

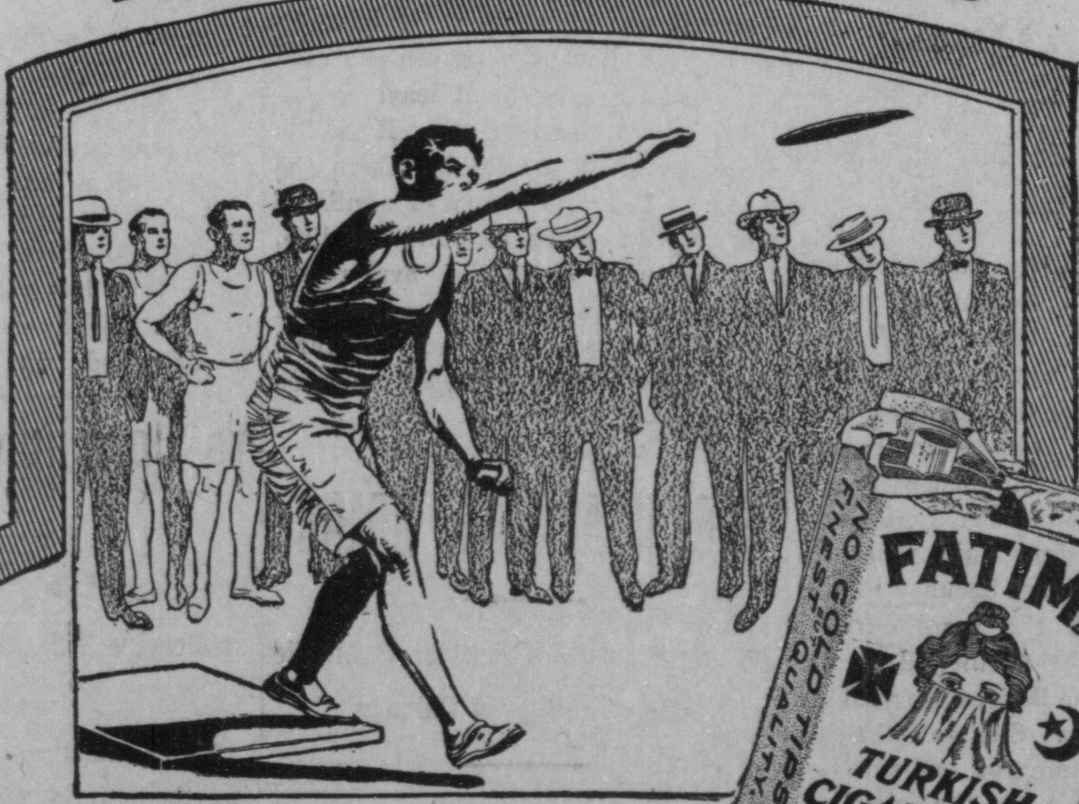

Elwood Tin Mill Converted Into Armed Camp.

Elwood, Ind., July 9.—Every train from the east is bringing strike-breakers to the Elwood plant of the American Tin Plate company. Men are getting off in the country from one to five miles out and are picked up by automobiles and carried inside the plant. Four machines are kept busy. Several Elwood men have applied for their old positions and have been admitted at the gate.

Some of the men arriving from the east are heavily armed. One appeared with two big six-shooters strapped to his sides. It is stated that the eastern men who were working in open shops, but who were locked out by the organization of the leaders prior to the strike order, will be transported to this city, where they will be put to work.

It was also stated that on the success or failure of this mill as an open shop depended the tin industry in western territory, and that if it was found impossible to operate as an open shop, all western tin mills would be abandoned, or at least those in Indiana, with the exception of the one at Gary. The management expects to have two hundred men in the mill inclosure by tonight.

Lesson II.—Third Quarter, For
July 11, 1909.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Acts xvi, 16-40.
Memory Verses, 29-31—Golden Text,
Acts xvi, 31—Commentary Prepared
by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

The scene of this lesson is Philippi. The special places in the city are the prison meeting, the prison and the home of Lydia. The principal incidents are the casting out of the evil spirit, the cruel treatment and imprisonment of Paul and Silas and the conversion of the jailer and his household. And the great workers are, as always, God and the devil. Thus the story is in greater or less measure duplicated every day until finally the devil and all his followers shall be sent to the place prepared for them and the kingdom shall be the Lord's. "Yea, all things shall fall down before Him; all nations shall serve Him" (Ps. lxxii, 11). In whatever part of the conflict we may find ourselves we must at any cost stand wholly apart from all that is of the devil, for all that is either of God or the devil, no matter how it may look to our eyes. As the servants of God proceeded to the place of prayer a young woman met them who cried, "These men are the servants of the Most High God, who shew unto us the way of salvation," and this she did many days. Now, this was the truth that she uttered, as were also the words of the evil spirit in Mark i, 24, "Thou art the holy one of God," but Jesus would have none of that, and Paul would have none of this, recognizing it to be of the devil, so in the name of Jesus he commanded the evil spirit to come out of her. Good words and good works, as men judge, do not necessarily indicate the spirit of God as the one who is speaking and working. No one ever said more beautiful and wonderful words than Balaam, and yet he is associated in Jude 11 with Cain and Core, and we are taught to beware of such as he. Those who do not honor Jesus as God are not of God and therefore must be of the evil one, and yet many such are honored today as if they were truly sent of God, and to talk against them would cause possibly as great a tumult as did the casting out of this demon at Philippi. Some say we must be broad minded and acknowledge the good in all religions, but as the truth is in Jesus and not in other so called leaders we must be as narrow as Paul and as Jesus Himself, who told the religious leaders of His day that they were of the devil.

When people's gains are touched they are apt to become suddenly indignant against unrighteousness as viewed from their standpoint, as the men in our lesson did and later those at Ephesus (chapter xix, 23-29). Paul and Silas were therefore arrested, many stripes laid upon them, and they were cast into the inner prison and their feet made fast in the stocks. Where now was the "all power" of Him who sent them forth, the "power over all the power of the enemy?" (Matt. xxviii, 18; Luke x, 19). As well ask the same concerning Joseph and Daniel and all others who have been permitted to suffer for His sake. Paul knew that he was called to suffer for Christ's sake, and he assures us that it is our privilege also (Acts ix, 16; Phil. i, 29). To glorify God is everything, and if we can do that best by suffering, then suffering is the way. With aching bodies and feeling that they had been shamefully treated (I Thess. ii, 2), they prayed to God and by His grace were able to sing praises to Him so loudly that all the prisoners heard them. Like Jehoshaphat's singers, they praised the Lord before they saw deliverance (II Chron. xx, 21, 22). It is well to "bless the Lord at all times and have His praise continually in our mouth" (Ps. xxxiv, 1). Not only were they heard throughout the prison, but in heaven also, and suddenly the prison was shaken by an earthquake, all doors opened and every one was loosed. Some one has said that, although they had not influence enough on earth to keep them out of jail or to get them out, they had power enough from heaven to shake the prison to its very foundations. The jailer also was shaken to his very soul and would have killed himself; but, finding his prisoners all safe, he is convicted of sin and, falling down before Paul and Silas, asked what he must do to be saved. Gathering his household together, they had the way of salvation set before them by these messengers of the Lord, and that night he and all his confessed Christ by baptism.

We may judge from Paul's preaching, as recorded elsewhere, just what he would tell them of the condition of all men by nature, of the grace of God in giving His Son to die for sinners, the just for the unjust; of His being made a curse for us, of His resurrection, ascension and coming again. Doubtless Paul would say, "It was to Him we prayed down there in the dungeon, His praises we sang, and in heaven He heard us and did this wonderful thing and kept you from killing yourself that you might be saved and after witnessing and suffering here for awhile share with Him His kingdom and glory." To believe is to receive (John i, 12), and there then this household received Jesus as their Saviour. What joy in heaven as well as on earth, according to Luke xv, 7, 10. It was worth while to suffer, to be unjustly and cruelly treated and imprisoned, to bring this to pass.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week
Beginning July 11, 1909.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.
Topic—Life lessons for me from the gospel of John.—John xiv, 1-21. (Consecration meeting.)

It would be impossible in such limited space to discuss in any detail the many important questions that have arisen concerning the gospel of John. That John wrote the gospel cannot be successfully denied. It is true that his name is not directly attached to it, but the author in modesty speaks of himself as "that disciple whom Jesus loved." This expression can be applied to John alone. It is true also that the style of writing is different from that of John's epistles and the Revelation, which he also wrote. But there is no argument here against John's authority of the gospel, for no author of ability would use the same style of composition in three books so vastly different as John's gospel, his letters and his ecstatic vision, which he received on the island of Patmos. History requires one style of composition, letters another and a vision dealing with sublime symbols and imagery still a third. It is true also that John's gospel differs in form from those of Matthew, Mark and Luke. But this lies simply in the different purpose John had in view. They told the story of Christ's earthly life, recorded his sayings and deeds, but John's distinctive purpose, as declared by himself, was to set forth the divinity of Christ. "These are written (the words of his evangel) that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that, believing, ye might have life through His name." Eusebius, the historian, quotes Clement of Alexandria as saying that "John, the last of the apostles, perceiving that the bodily things (of Jesus) had been made known in the gospels and being at the same time urged by his friends and at the same time being borne along by the Spirit, wrote a spiritual gospel."

This was John's purpose, and hence his gospel differs in character from the other gospels, but he is none the less the author and what he says none less true. Men who deny the divinity of Christ have fiercely attacked the gospel of John, simply because to accept it would be to acknowledge the deity of Christ. But regardless of all assaults it has gone on in its career of revealing the divine side of the nature of Christ, with its records of his highest spiritual addresses, strengthening the weak, comforting the sorrowing and leading men unto eternal life through "Jesus the Christ, the Son of God." Human attacks fall helpless when they are aimed at that which is divine.

The gospel of John alone records Christ's attendance at four Passovers in His public ministry, which makes this period of His life three years long. See John ii, 13; v, 1; vi, 4; xii, 1. The gospel may upon this basis be naturally divided as follows:

1. Prologue.—The deity of Christ (chapter i, 1-14).
2. The Introduction to Christ's Public Ministry.—Preaching of John the Baptist, calling disciples, wedding at Cana of Galilee (chapter i, 15; ii, 12).
3. First Year of Public Ministry. Covering Labors in Judea, Samaria and Galilee.—Cleanses the temple, Nicodemus, woman of Samaria, heals nobleman's son (ii, 13; iv, 54).
4. Second Year of Public Ministry.—Healing of lame man at port of Bethesda and discourses (v, 1; vi, 4).
5. Third Year of Public Ministry.—Feeding of 5,000, various incidents, blind man healed, Christ as shepherd, raising of Lazarus, last week of Christ on earth, crucifixion, resurrection (vi, 5; xxi, 25).

The gospel of John contains one of the most comforting addresses delivered by Christ. It begins with the fourteenth chapter and closes with the seventeenth, which contains His intercessory prayer. The address opens with the familiar words, "Let not your heart be troubled." He was about to leave them and comforts them. The basis of the comfort is faith—faith in God, faith in Christ, faith in a future life, when they shall be reunited. "I go to prepare a place for you, that when I am there ye may be also." To faith He adds the coming of the Holy Spirit to represent Him and the important work which He has to do. Faith should be the ground of all comfort. He who believes unto salvation need fear no evil. "Let not your heart be troubled."

MUSIC FOR HIS COWS.

Jersey Farmer Uses a Phonograph to Encourage the Milk Industry.

Asserting that the psychic qualities of phonograph music have the effect of persuading his cows to give more milk than they are inclined to give without the aid of soul stirring harmonies, Steever Smith, a farmer near Great Notch, N. J., went to Montclair, N. J., recently and purchased a dozen new records at a music store for use in his dairy.

Smith said he formerly had in his employ as dairymaid a Swiss girl, whose yodling to the cows had such a soothing effect that the bovines would have made him rich through their efforts if the pleasant conditions could have continued for a few years. The girl, Lena by name, got married, and after her departure the cows moped and refused to give much milk.

The accidental introduction of the phonograph at the farmhouse gave Smith a hint as to its advantages as a substitute for the songs of the tuneless dairymaid, and now the cows are in a fair way to become heavy milk producers, as of yore.

RICH GOLD FIND IN CANADA.

Field Discovered in Saskatchewan Province Rivals the Klondike.

The most remarkable gold discovery since the Klondike finds was recently made at Lac La Ronge, 200 miles north of Prince Albert, in the great hinterland of the province of Saskatchewan.

H. C. Hamelin and B. L. Clemons of Prince Albert, having evidence of a rich gold area in northern Saskatchewan, outfitted last year three parties of prospectors. The finds were encouraging, but not sensational. This year two more parties were sent out, and the finds which have been made of an eight inch vein of free milling gold quartz has created a profound sensation.

Deputy H. C. Hamelin has a specimen from the vein quartz declared to be the richest and best defined specimen he has seen. The assays so far made from former finds have shown $51 to $78 and $61 to $84 to the ton respectively, but the latest sample is declared to carry from $20,000 to $30,000 to the ton. The finds have been made within forty miles of each other.

"Society of the Moon Kissed Lotus."

Selected for their proficiency in culinary lines over the heads of 2,000 classmates, three young ladies from Japan are now at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition in Seattle, Wash., demonstrating the many features of Japanese kitchen art in the Japanese tea garden. The young ladies are known in Nipponese as Yachigo, Matsura and Yetsu Sato. They are unable to speak English and appear dressed in the national kimono of the flowerly isles. In the seminary in Tokyo in which they are scholars they belong to a sorority, built on the same lines as American sororities, called the "Society of the Moon Kissed Lotus."

TROOPS GUARD COAL FIELDS

The Situation in Cape Breton Grows Tense.

MARTIAL LAW NOW PREVAILS

Under Protection of Canadian Permanent Forces the Operators Will Make Determined Effort to Resume Work at Mines Which Have Been Closed on Account of Strike—United Mine Workers Say Presence of Soldiers Will Strengthen Their Cause.

Glace Bay, C. B., July 9.—Troops are guarding the collieries of the Dominion company and martial law prevails in the southern Cape Breton coal fields. An attempt will be made to operate the mines under military protection. Six hundred men from the Canadian permanent forces are on duty. Sentries with fixed bayonets guard the approaches to all the collieries, and at No. 2 and No. 6, where the most trouble has been, machine guns command the approach.

An attempt will be made to work all the collieries with the possible exception of No. 6. A large number of workmen are now inside the fence at Dominion No. 2 and are housed in shacks there. Under the protection of the troops it is anticipated by the company that many men who have stayed away will come back to work in the morning.

On the other hand the United Mine Workers leaders declare that the presence of the soldiers will tend to swell their ranks.

MEXICAN PRISON METHODS

Scored by an American Who Managed to Break Out.

El Paso, Tex., July 9.—Apparently in a serious condition from an ugly wound in his arm, caused, he declared, by a bayonet in the hands of a Mexican guard, Frank Edens of San Antonio, Tex., reached El Paso from Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, opposite El Paso, where he claims, after an imprisonment of eight days without any charge against him he was liberated. Edens says he was arrested on suspicion of being a man named Wilson, wanted for robbery. Edens broke down the jail door after being confined eighteen hours without food or water, and says the guard beat him with his rifle and stabbed him with his bayonet. When released, blood poisoning developed, it is claimed, from inattention. Edens claimed the Mexican officials refused to call the American consul during his confinement.

LIBRARIAN SLAIN

Mrs. Griswold Shot Down at Eaton, O., by Jealous Lineman.

Eaton, O., July 9.—Mrs. Lida Griswold, thirty-eight years old, was shot and instantly killed by Henry Rife, a lineman, aged thirty-eight, in the library building in this city last evening. Rife then attempted suicide. He sustained but a slight wound and was locked up in jail.

The dead woman was librarian in the library here, and was a daughter of Judge J. A. Gilmore. The tragedy was witnessed by the twelve-year-old son of Mrs. Griswold. But one shot from a revolver was fired, the bullet severing an artery in the region of the heart.

Rife, who has a wife and children, is alleged to have been paying attentions to the woman he killed, and it is thought resentment led to the killing.

Alligators Stripped His Bones.

Pensacola, Fla., July 9.—With the bones stripped of flesh by alligators, the body of Herman Wilcox of Chicago was found in Good Time lake, two miles from Camp Walton, a summer resort, where for the past two months Wilcox has been residing with his mother. Not knowing that the lake contained hundreds of alligators, Wilcox, four days ago, used it as a swimming hole. He had been missing since then.

President Returns to Washington.

Burlington, Vt., July 9.—President Taft's participation in the Lake Champlain tercentenary celebration ended last evening and he left here late last night enroute to Washington, where this afternoon he will plunge again into the intricacies of the tariff at a meeting with house and senate leaders concerning the conference consideration of the measure which is so soon to be begun.

The Bodies Recovered.

South Bend, Ind., July 9.—The bodies of Herman Lindeman of Chicago and the girl supposed to be his wife, who were drowned in the St. Joseph river under melodramatic circumstances, have been recovered. Both bodies are in a good state of preservation.

Jasonville Dogs in Bad.

A lively Italian conductor is advertised as "the greatest sensation-alist." Presumably he stands on his head while conducting. Nothing else was left to excel in.

It turns out at the close of the government's fiscal year that the government is $25,000,000 richer than it thought it was because it owes that much less than it was feared it would. To a perfectly solvent government or individual subtraction in debt is additional in wealth.

The new federal court bill for Indiana will not down. Representative Crumpacker will be on hand at the next session of congress with a bill dividing the State into five districts, instead of seven as provided in the plans which have failed, dropping South Bend and Terre Haute from the circuit. This plan will meet vigorous opposition.

Overtaxing the stomach not only involves useless expenditures of money, but is a direct invitation to disease. If the plain, simple diet were in evidence half as much as are the dainties and delicacies with which too many stomachs are stuffed from time to time, there would be fewer complaints of ailments that lead to avoidable breakdowns, collapses and premature deaths.

Tennessee is to be a "dry" state, but not as "dry" as Kansas. Judge Hart, at Nashville, has decided that a man has a right to store liquor at home, in a locker, or in an office, or elsewhere, as long as he does not sell it. This gives sanction also to clubs to keep liquor stored for their use, but not for sale. Under this ruling there will continue a very considerable trade in Tennessee and the distillers and brewers outside the state will have opportunity for profit in supplying the demand, Kansas apparently has gone to the point of forbidding the use of intoxicants under any conditions, which is the logical end aimed at by prohibition, though as a purely constitutional question the Tennessee law perhaps goes as far as the courts will ultimately sanction.

The "third degree," as applied by police authorities in these latter days, smacks considerably of the infamous inquisition as practiced in the middle ages, with its thumbscrew and rack and other instruments of torture. Of course police authorities defend the third degree on the ground that the end, in the interests of society, justifies the means. The excuse is open to serious objection. Browbeating, badgering and bulldozing a suspect hour after hour; depriving him of sufficient food, sleep and rest for days at a stretch; confronting him suddenly with gruesome relies of the crime; informing him that he has been betrayed by others, etc., may finally wring confessions or admissions from a mind weakened and terrorized by threats or duplicity. We say again, these methods smack of the inquisition, where confessions and recantations were extorted under the influence of the rack, and is unworthy of civilization.

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

IS REGULAR BANKER.

(Brookville American.)
 J. B. Hiles, who was here last week trying to interest our citizens in opening a new bank in Brookville seems to be touring the country looking for places to open banks. We have heard through our exchanges of at least a half dozen places he has visited talking bank.

NEW PEST FOR WHEAT.

(Lewisville Freeman.)
 A new pest to the wheat crop has materialized in this section in the past few days. It is in the form of a yellow and blue striped bug, and in some cases the insects completely destroy the wheat by sucking the milk from the grain, which leaves the kernel in a shriveled state and easily becomes molded. The bugs are a new species and have never been seen here before. Some are of the opinion that the wet weather is the cause of the new pest.

BIRD'S NEST CAUSED FIRE.

(Columbus Republican.)
 A bird's nest at the ear barns of the Indianapolis, Columbus & Southern Traction company on South Washington street caused a small fire which was easily extinguished about 5 o'clock this morning.

The nest had been built between the inside trolley wires and the ceiling and it is supposed that a spark from a passing trolley wheel ignited the nest. In a few seconds the nest was blazing and the fire began spreading to the ceiling. An alarm was sent in from box No. 16 and the Fifth street department responded. The damage was trivial.

WAS ALWAYS A BIRD.

(Mt. Carmel, Ill., Register.)
 A Mt. Carmel lady has a wonderful record. Although she has been married four times she has always been a bird. She began life as Miss Elizabeth Bird of Harrison county, near Paris, Ky. Her first venture outside the home nest was when she married Bert Martin. When Mr. Martin died, she married Edward Crow, a farmer. When the time came to change nests, she allied herself with William Robin and lived happily until the matrimonial season again rolled around for Mrs. Robin. Then David Buzzard, a widower, more attractive personally and socially than his name would indicate, appeared and Mrs. Robin became Mrs. Buzzard. Into the Buzzard roost Mrs. Buzzard carried one little Martin, two little Crows and one little Robin. One little Buzzard was already there to welcome the other little birds.

UNIQUE INVENTION.

(Greensburg News.)

The Greensburg National Bank has installed a money changing machine that is certainly a unique piece of mechanism. It is on the style and principle of the adding machine, only much smaller. It is loaded with money of all denominations from the silver dollar down to the copper pennies. A simple press of the button on the amount of money needed brings the proper amount into a roll-low plate below and by pushing a small slide the money is transferred to the palm of the hand. As an illustration, if the dollar button is pushed the pan will have in it a half dollar, quarter, two dimes and a nickel. One of the penny racks pushes out two pennies at a time and one a single penny. If four cents is wanted, each rack pushes out two pennies.

One beauty of the contrivance is that in addition to convenience, it is absolutely accurate, no falling short or mistakes in change.

HAS RELATIVES HERE

(Connersville News.)

Lewis Perkins of Roachdale received a post card last evening that well nigh took his breath away, it was like a message from the grave.

It was from a cousin, Robert Perkins, who went west years ago, had never been heard from by any of his family and was believed by all of them to be dead. The card merely said the writer said he would write to see if his cousin was still alive, it had been so long since he had heard from any of his family; that he was still single, that the family with whom he was living were away from home and that his address was Box 66, Dexter, New Mexico. A sister of Robert Perkins, Mrs. Richard Salyers, formerly lived in this city, but is now dead. She left three children, one of whom is Mrs. John Batcher, of Lyons Station. Another, Miss Pearl Salyers, lives with a Mr. Collyer and family in the country, while the third lives with Ham Salyers and family in this city.

The family lived in Kentucky, but many relatives are in this vicinity. The wanderer's mother may still be living in Kentucky, but has not been heard of for some time.

FLYING MACHINE EVILE.

(Richmond Item.)

As a matter of public duty we must call the attention of our readers to the social and diplomatic complications of the aeroplane or flying machine. The great American ideal of publicity has arrived at one more stage of realization. Let us bring the thing home by one simple illustration. Denied entrance at your door a book agent enters his automobile which, by a simple turn of a screw, becomes an auto hoister or mechanical bird. Hovering above your roof he dangles the fascinating volumes of prose or verse before your window on a fishing line. If you hesitate, even then, he will lower on a companion line a phonograph which will read choice passages aloud and call attention to the excellence of the binding.

But this is only one of the experiences which the flying machine is sure to bring. Hitherto our ancestors lived on one surface, life moved on one uncomplicated and easily calculated plane. All social usages were adjusted to earth's surface. To be sure, we had our cellars and mine shafts, our upper chambers, lofts, garrets, etc. But the ascent and descent was of a graduated and easily ascertained nature. It served merely for temporary retirement and we soon came back to earth. Now all that is changed, or soon to be changed. Fancy, for example, King Edward entertaining the nobility, gentry and Whitelaw Reid at a garden party. Green lawns and basky bowers are gay with the merry company in holiday attire. The sunlight sparkles on jewels and tappings, bright diamonds, equally bright eyes and Diamond Dyes. Suddenly the light grows dim, a hush falls on the company, a certain uneasiness. A flock of flying machines has halted just above the garden. It is a party of Cook's tourists from Pittsburg. In a clear resonant voice the conductor calls attention to the objects of interest on the lawn below. A tourist of tender years drop a box of Unecda biscuit into the punch bowl. Need we say that such an occurrence would go far to mar the pleasure and put a check on a flow of merriment.

BY THE WAYSIDE

In accordance with a rule issued by the postal department persons owning vicious dogs will be compelled to tie them up or mail will not be delivered to the houses. Of late a number of dogs have frightened and bitten postmen. Any resident will be compelled to get rid of his dog, or get his mail through the general delivery window at the postoffice if he neglects to hold in check his surly canine, unless the postman chooses to deliver the mail of his own free will.

In having the mail delivered to you the postal authorities do not contemplate any unnecessary obstruction to the quick and safe delivery of the same, and a vicious dog is something that no person cares to come in contact with, especially at this season of the year.

He finds the "touchy" individual who wears his heart on his sleeve, the mercenary who wants $5.00 worth for his dollar, the dead-beat who intends never to pay, the kicker who is never satisfied with anything, and the good soul who appreciates the paper and drops words of encouragement as well as coin to help it along.

SUMMER FAST SLIPPING PAST

The Signs of the Times Indicate a Change in the Seasons This Year.

KATYDIDS SOUND A WARNING

They Protest That a Frost Will be Here Within the Next Six Weeks.

The Katydids have been murmuring their melancholy plaint for some days or rather nights, but there are a lot of people who are not aware of it, for there is a general disposition among people to pay no attention to such things at this delightful season.

Just the same, the plaint of the Katydid means something.

And developments within a short time will be evidence of what it means.

The calendar may be referred to as corroborative of the fact that the Katydid knows what it is talking about.

Has not the twenty-first day of June long since passed, and do not the nights begin to lengthen after the twenty-first of June.

Sure, that's a cinch.

It all means that things are getting right for a change of seasons, although the summer time, according to the calendar makers, has only commenced.

The harvest is on and when the harvest is on it means the crops are ripe and when the crops are ripe, it means that there will soon be one grand hustle for the windup of the season.

No wonder the Katydid protests. No one likes to see the glad summer season go by.

But it has started and subsequent events will prove this assertion.

Just watch the newspapers, the advertising columns.

Soon you will see the merchants hustling to dispose of their summer overstock. They will offer big bargains, for no live merchant cares to take the chance of carrying over any of this season's goods to next year.

From now on there will be a noticeable shortening of the days. The sun will do its best and will raise many a "sweat" but the time is not far in the future when the straw hat and the "lingerie" advertised will be succeeded by the announcement that "we must make room for fall goods."

The calendar makers and the merchants are reliable barometers.

AMUSEMENTS

The Kramer rink will be open for skating tonight.

"Her First Biscuits" and "The Faded Lilies" are the subjects to be shown at the Vaudet tonight. The first picture is comic and depicts the troubles of the newlyweds. The second subject is dramatic and is said to be very interesting. The film is made by the Biograph Co. Miss Liddle will sing the illustrated song, "Dorothy."

The management of the Star-Grand has a Biograph film to offer tonight with two subjects, "The Peachbasket Hat" and "The Mexican Sweethearts." The first picture is comic in the extreme, showing the fears of a father and mother, who thought their child kidnapped and later find it under a feminine creation. The second subject is dramatic, picturing the troubles of American soldiers with Mexican sweethearts. Miss Clara Gregg will sing "There is Nothing in the World Like Love."

Rushville people are taking advantage of this hot weather by going in bathing at the White City Bathing Beach at Broad Ripple on Sundays. The Broad Ripple Beach is the favorite with bathers on account of the basin being built of cement, and gives a smooth walking space. The water is always clear and fresh, coming from flowing artesian wells and not from a muddy river. The beach is of white Michigan lake sand and one can enjoy a romp on the beach without playing in the mud. The pool has a gradual depth from one to nine feet, safe for wading, diving and all aquatic sports. Danger is eliminated by life guards being on duty all the time. Bathing suits for ladies and gents can be secured at the beach. Take White City cars at Illinois and Washington streets.

All of the local motion picture theaters have a Biograph film this evening, and a good program is promised at each. "The Jilt" which is to be shown at the Palace theater is said to be one of the best ever shown in the city, picturing the excellent company of actors, always seen in their films. The subject is dramatic and full of intense human pathos. Earl Robertson will sing "Won't You Ever Say Hello?"

CHAPTER IV.

THE INDISCREET MR. CHASE.

HERE was not a handsomer,
more striking figure in the palace gardens on the night of the reception than Hollingsworth Chase nor one whose poise proved that he knew the world quite as well as it is possible for any one man to know it. His was a unique figure also, for he was easily distinguishable as the only American in the brilliant assemblage.

He was presented to the princess late in the evening, together with Baggs of the British office. His pride

A heavy hand fell upon his collar.

and confidence received a severe shock. She glanced at him with unaffected welcome, but with the air of one who was looking upon his face for the first time.

He could not again approach within speaking distance of the princess, nor did he presume to make the effort.
Chase knew his proper place. She was the gayest, the most vivacious being in the whole assemblage. She had but to stretch out her hand or project her smile and every man in touch with the spell was ready to drop at her feet.
At last she led her court off toward the pavilion under which the royal orchestra was playing. As if it were a signal, every one turned his steps in that direction. Chase and the Englishman had been conversing diligently with an ancient countess and her two attractive daughters near the fountain.

Again the dapper director came forward to lead the musicians, and again
he was most enthusiastically received.
This time Chase was not where he could watch the princess. He found, therefore, that he could devote his attention to the music and the popular conductor. He was amazed to find that the fellow seemed to be inspired.
He was also surprised to find himself
carried away by the fervor of the moment.

With the final crash of the orchestra
he found himself shouting again with the others. Oddly, this time he was as mad as they. A score or more of surprised, disapproving eyes were turned upon him when he yelled "Encore!"

"There will be no encore," admonished the fair girl at his side kindly.
"It is not New York," she added, with a sly smile.

Ten minutes later Chase and the Englishman were lighting their cigars
in an obscure corner of the gardens.
"Extraordinarily beautiful," Chase
murmured reflectively as he seated himself upon the stone railing along
the drive.

"Yes, they say he really wrote it himself," drawled Baggs, puffing away.
"I'm not talking about the music,"
corrected Chase sharply.

"Oh!" murmured Baggs apologetical-
ly. "The night?"

"No; the princess, Baggs. Haven't you noticed her?" with intense sarcasm in his tone.

"Of course I have, old chap. By Jove, do you know she is good looking —positively ripping."

They lazily observed the approach of one couple, attracted no doubt by the disparity in the height of the two shadows. The man was at least half a head shorter than his companion, but his ardor seemed a thousandfold more vast. Chase was amused by the apparent intensity of the small officer's devotion, especially as it was met with a coldness that would have chilled the fervor of a man much larger and therefore more timid. It was impossible to see the faces of the couple until they passed through a moonlit streak

in the walk quite close at hand.

Chase started and grasped his companion's arm. One was the Princess Genevra and—was it possible? Yes,
the nimble conductor—the sensation
of the hour, the musical lion! Moreover, to Chase's cold horror, the "little freak" was actually making violent
love to the divinity of Rapp-Thorberg!

The princess had not seen the two men, nor had the fervent conductor,
whose impassioned French was easily distinguishable by the unwilling listeners. The sharp, indignant "No" of the princess, oft repeated, did much to relieve the pain in the heart of her American admirer. Finally, with an unmistakable cry of anger, she halted
not ten feet from where Chase sat, as though he had become a part of the stone rail.

"I have asked you not to touch me,
sir! Is not that enough? If you persist I shall be compelled to appeal to my father again. The whole situation is loathsome to me. Are you blind?
Can you not see that I despise you? I will not endure it a day longer. You promised to respect my wishes."

"How can I respect a promise which
condemns me to purgatory every time
I see you?" he cried passionately. "I adore you. You are the queen of my life, the holder of my soul. Genevra, Genevra, I love you! My soul for one tender word, for one soft caress! Ah, do not be so cruel! I will be your slave!"

"Enough! Stop, I say! If you dare to touch me!" she cried, drawing away
from her tormentor, her voice trembling with anger. The little conductor's manner changed on the instant.
He gave a snarl of rage.

"By heaven, I'll make you pay for this some day! You shall learn what a man can do with a woman such as you are! You!"

Just at that moment a tall figure leaped from the shadows and confronted the quivering musician. A heavy hand fell upon his collar, and he was almost jerked from his feet, half choked, half paralyzed with alarm.
Not a word was spoken. Chase whirled the presumptuous suitor about
until he faced the gates to the garden.
Then, with more force than he realized, he applied his boot to the person
of the offender—once, twice, thrice!

The princess stared, wide eyed and unbelieving, upon the brief tragedy.
She saw her tormentor hurled viciously toward the gates and then, with new alarm, saw him pick himself up
from the ground, writhing with pain and anger. His sword flashed from its scabbard as, with a scream of rage, he dashed upon the tall intruder. She saw Chase—even in the shadows she knew him to be the American—she saw Chase lightly leap aside, avoiding the thrust for his heart. Then, as if he were playing with a child, he wrested the weapon from the conductor's
hand, snapped the blade in two pieces
and threw them off into the bushes.

"Skip!" was his only word. It was a command that no one in Rapp-Thor-
berg ever had heard before.

"You shall pay for this!" screamed
the conductor, tugging at his collar.
"Scoundrel! Dog! Beast! What do you mean? Murderer! Robber! Assassin!"

"You know what I mean, you little shrimp!" roared Chase. "Skip! Don't hang around here a second longer or I'll— And he took a threatening step toward his adversary. The latter turned tail and ran twenty paces or more in heart-breaking time, then, realizing that he was not pursued, stopped and shook his fist at his assailant.

"Come, Genevra," he gasped, but she remained as if rooted to the spot. He waited an instant and then walked rapidly away in the direction of the palace. Baggs grasped Chase by the shoulder, shook him and exclaimed
when it was too late:

"You blooming ass, do you know
what you've done?"

"The — miserable cur was annoying the princess," muttered Chase,
straightening his cuffs, vaguely realizing that he had interfered too hastily.

"Confound it, man, he's the chap
she's going to marry."

"Marry?" gasped Chase.

"The hereditary prince of Brabatz-Karl Brabatz."

"Good Lord!"

"You must have known."

"How the dev— Of course I didn't know," groaned Chase. "But, hang it all, man, he was annoying her. She was flouting him for it. She said she despised him. I don't understand!"

The princess came forward into the light of the path. There was a quaint little wrinkle of mirth about her lips,
which trembled nevertheless, but her eyes were full of solicitude.

"I'm sorry, sir," she began nervously.
"You have made a serious mistake.
But," she added frankly, holding out

HIDDEN DANGERS.

Nature Gives Timely Warnings That
no Rushville Citizen Can Afford to Ignore

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 1 comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are sick. Well kidneys secrete a clear, amber fluid. Sick kidneys send out
a thin, pale and foamy, or a thick,
red, ill-smelling urine, full of sediment and irregular of passage.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 2 comes from the back. Back pains, dull and heavy, or sharp and acute, tell you
of sick kidneys and warn you of the approach of dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and cure
them permanently. Here's Rushville
proof:

Mrs. M. T. Lewark, 1023 North
Perkins street, Rushville, Ind., says:

"I felt miserable for some time
and the kidney secretions caused me
great annoyance by their irregularity in passage. In the morning I felt very tired and I had little strength or energy. Deciding to try Doan's Kidney Pills, I obtained a box from F. B. Johnson & Co's drug store.
They have brought me great benefit,
removing the lameness in my back and strengthening my kidneys. I think highly of this remedy."

her hand to him, "you meant to defend me. I thank you."

Chase bowed low over her hand, too bewildered to speak. Baggs was pulling at his mustache and looking nervously in the direction which the prince
had taken.

"He'll be back here with the guard,"
he muttered.

"He will go to my father," said Genevra, her voice trembling. "He will be very angry. I am sorry, indeed, that you should have witnessed our scene. Of course you could not have known who he was."

"I thought he was a— But in any event, your highness, he was annoying
you," supplemented Chase eagerly.
"You will forgive me if I've caused
you even greater, graver annoyance.
What can I do to set the matter right?
I can explain my error to the duke.
He'll understand."

"Perhaps—perhaps you'd better go
at once," said the princess, rather pathetically. "My father will not overlook the indignity to—to my—to his future son-in-law. I am afraid he may take extreme measures."

"Forgive me," muttered the hapless Chase.

"It would not be proper in me to say that I could bless you for what you have done," she said, so naively
that he lifted his eyes to hers and let his heart escape heavenward.

"The whole world will call me a bungling, stupid ass for not knowing who he was," said Chase, with a wretched smile.

"If I were you I'd never confess that I did not know who he was," she said.
"Let the world think that you did know. It will not laugh then. If you can trust your friend to keep the secret I am sure you can trust me to do the same."

Again Chase was speechless—this time with joy. She would shield him from ridicule!

"And now please go! It grieves me to feel that I may be the unhappy
cause of misfortune to you."

"No misfortune can appall me now," murmured he gallantly. Then came the revolting realization that she was to wed the little musician. The thought burst from his lips before he could prevent: "I don't believe you want to marry him. He is the duke's choice, you?"

"And I am the duke's daughter," she said steadily, a touch of hauteur in her voice. "Good night. Goodbye. I am not sorry that it has happened."

She turned and left them, walking swiftly among the trees. A moment later her voice came from the shadows, quick and pleading.

"Hasten," she called softly. "They

The duke's a terror. I don't for the life of me see how you failed to know who the chap really is."

"An Englishman never sees a joke until it is too late, they say. This time it appears to be the American who is slow witted. What I don't understand is why he was leading that confounded band."

"My word, Chase, everybody in Europe, except you, knows that Brabatz
is a crank about music—composes, directs and all that. He's a confounded little bouncer just the same. He's mad about music and women and doesn't care a hang about wine—the worst kind, don't you know. I say it's a shame she has to marry him. But that's the way of it with royalty, old chap. You Americans don't understand it. They have to marry one another whether they like it or not. But, I say, you'd better come over and stop with me tonight. It will be better if they don't find you just yet."

Three days later a man came down to relieve Chase of his office. He was unceremoniously supplanted in the duchy of Rapp-Thorberg.

It was the successful pleading of the Princess Genevra that kept him from serving a period in durance vile.

No More Gray Hair.

It is easier to preserve the color of the hair than to restore it, although it is possible to do both. Our grandmothers understood the secret. They made and used a "sage tea," and their dark, glossy hair long after middle life was due to this fact. Our mothers have gray hairs before they are beginning to appreciate the wisdom of our grandmothers in using
"sage tea" for their hair, and are fast following suit. The present generation has the advantage of the past in that it can get a ready to use preparation called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur. As a scalp tonic and color restorer, this preparation is vastly superior to the ordinary "sage tea" made by our grandmothers, and it can be bought for 50 cents and $1
a bottle at almost any first-class
drug store, or will be sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74
Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

THE FLOOD WATERS
SLOWLY SUBSIDING

Danger Point In Missouri and Kansas Passed.

Kansas City, Mo., July 9.—The Missouri and Kansas flood situation appears to be gradually improving. At Kansas City, the Kansas and Missouri
rivers both are still rising, but the prediction is that by tonight they will begin falling without causing damage
here. Springfield, Mo., on the Jordan river, and Ottawa, Kan., on the Marais des Cygnes river, are the points
where most suffering has been experienced. The streets were buried under ten to fifteen feet of water. It is hoped that by tonight the floods there will have subsided.

Seeking Alleged Bigamist.

Indianapolis, July 9.—Detectives,
armed with a warrant, are searching for Don Downing, who was married
last Sunday to Miss May Alexander.
The warrant alleges that Downing became a bigamist when he married Miss Alexander. The warrant was sworn to by Mrs. Alva Downing, who said that Downing was her husband and that he left her and their little child in destitute circumstances.

Paris, July 9.—M. Caillaux, the minister of finance, was struck in the face

FOR THE BRIDE

Illinois Girl Jilted Indiana

LIKED ANOTHER MAN BETTER

Or at Least That is the Explanation

the Intimate Friends of Miss Tannie Doty Offer in Excuse of Her Failure to Appear at Final Moment—All Preparations Had Been Completed
For Her Marriage With the Rev. B.
B. Braden of Hammond.

Charleston, Ill., July 9.—After all preparations for the wedding had been completed, the trousseau packed, the wedding guests assembled, the minister, the Rev. B. B. Braden, and the prospective bridegroom standing expectantly by his side, both awaiting the entrance of the bride-to-be, the proposed marriage of Miss Tannie Doty, the beautiful daughter of Mr.
and Mrs. Marion Doty, living five miles south of this city, and the Rev. James Snodgrass, pastor of the Baptist church of Hammond, Ind., did not take place, but instead the father of Miss Doty entered and announced that the wedding of his daughter to the clergyman from Indiana had been postponed indefinitely.

The wedding had been set for 8
o'clock and every detail had been completed for the saying of the ceremony.
The invitations were issued two weeks ago, and the affair was to have been one of the most elaborate country
weddings ever seen in Coles county.
Instead of being present to meet her husband under the bridal arch, Miss Doty was being whirled away in a buggy by her brother, Lyman Doty,
who, it is said, had been opposed to the proposed match ever since it was first announced by the parents of the girl. The Doty family is one of the most prominent in Coles county. Intimate friends of Miss Doty say the reason she rejected the minister at the altar is because of the love she entertains for another.

MANY WITNESS TRAGEDY

A Logansport Lineman's Body Sizzles
in Maze of Wires.

Logansport, Ind., July 9.—While working on a pole in full view of a crowd of people, Ernest Redinger, aged thirty-two, a lineman for the Home Telephone company, met a shocking death.

Redinger touched a telephone wire
which was in contact with a high tension wire carrying 2,200 volts. The lineman's body at once became enveloped in flames and then pitched forward into a maze of wires. Suspended forty feet above the sidewalk, the body hung until the fire department
arrived.

Unable to tell whether it was the city high tension wire or the trolley
wire which had crossed the telephone wire, the power on the whole system
of the Fort Wayne & Wabash Valley
line from Lafayette to Fort Wayne, and the Logansport city power were turned off until the body was lowered.
Hundreds watched the ghoulish spectacle. The dead man is survived by a widow and a child.

Withstood Terrific Shock.

Fort Wayne, Ind., July 9.—Though
he sustained a shock of 2,200 volts of electricity and fell off a forty-foot trolley pole in consequence, John Preble,
a lineman, was not seriously injured.
He was repairing the trolley line when
the current passed through his body.
His double escape from instant death
is regarded as little less than miraculous.

Quickly Joined Her in Death.

Louisville, Ky., July 9.—Responding
to a notice that the body of his wife,
who, it is believed, committed suicide
two or three days ago, had been taken from the Ohio, Walter J. Honaker, member of a prominent firm of retail
shoe dealers, met the body at an undertaking establishment and, after identifying it, committed suicide.

Suicide of a Woman.

Indianapolis, July 9.—Mrs. Elizabeth Adams, thirty years old, the wife of Frank B. Adams, a traveling salesman, living in the Pasadena flats, stabbed
herself last evening and died ten minutes after being taken to the Methodist hospital. An unhappy love affair is said to have been responsible for the woman's rash act.

New Coal Road Projected.

Carlyle, Ill., July 9.—The Sandoval & Centralia Railroad company will build a line about five miles long,
starting at a point three miles north of Centralia, on the Burlington railroad, thence northeast to the coal mines at Sandoval, intersecting with the Illinois Central at that place.

The Excitement Dying Out.

Carlyle, Ill., July 9.—A few weeks ago oil leases on land in the east part of the county were in demand and owners received large royalties. Now the excitement has died out. Several wells have been drilled, but all are dry.

HOUSE HAS ITS LITTLE AX OUT

Senate Bill Will Probably Be Rejected En Bloc.

THEN COMES THE CONFERENCE

With the Passage of the Tariff Bill in the Senate and the Promise of Disagreement in the House, the Real Struggle Will Be Transferred to the Conference Room—Mr. Beveridge and Nine Other "Insurgents" Voted Against Aldrich Bill, and Mr. McNary Was the Lone Democrat to Favor It.

Washington, July 9.—Amid dramatic scenes, during which Senator Beveridge declared in effect that the Republican party was not keeping its "downward revision" pledges by the adoption of the pending tariff bill, that measure was passed by the senate by a vote of forty-five to thirty-four. Republicans voting in the negative were

SENATOR BEVERIDGE.

Beveridge (Ind.), Bristow (Kan.), Brown (Neb.), Burkett (Neb.), Clapp (Minn.), Crawford (S. D.), Cummins (Iowa), Dolliver (Iowa), La Follette (Wis.), Nelson (Minn.), McNary of Louisiana was the only Democrat recorded in the affirmative.

There will be no delay in sending the tariff bill to conference after it reaches the house. As soon as the bill is received Mr. Dazell is expected to offer a resolution by which the house will disagree to the senate amendments en bloc and agree to a conference. If there is any disposition to debate the resolution Representative Payne of New York probably will move the previous question on the resolution, thereby shutting off discussion. When Mr. Dazell's resolution is adopted the speaker will announce the list of conferees.

The bill will probably be in shape to be sent to the house some time today, but it is not improbable that the hour will be so late that the house will have adjourned before the measure can reach it. In that event it will be presented on Saturday. As it passed the senate, the bill contains almost 400 paragraphs. The senate made 840 amendments to the house provisions, many of which were added yesterday. Consequently the enrolling clerks are finding the preparation of the bill for the house an arduous task.

The secrecy which will surround the work of the conferees is indicated by the care with which the names are guarded by the speaker. Mr. Payne, chairman of the ways and means committee, professes ignorance as to the probable number or who they will be. He is also reticent with regard to the time that may be required for consideration of the bill in conference, but it is generally believed that it will be reported finally from conference by Monday, July 19.

It is very likely that the first thing agreed to in conference will be the reductions on necessities of life and raw materials made in the house bill by the senate. The increases made by the senate on certain luxuries probably will offer a temporary barrier to an early agreement in conference because of the contention that these increased rates will prove prohibitive, and will materially reduce the revenue.

The house conferees will insist on the house rates on hosiery and gloves, which were advanced decidedly over the Dingley rates. The latter were restored by the senate. The senate leaders desire to retain the Dingley schedule on wool, and there are some increases in the cotton schedule which will also be strongly contended for. In order that the senate rates on those articles may be retained, the senate conferees may yield to the house on hosiery and gloves.

The most difficult questions to be decided in conference are the rates on those articles regarding which there is a decided difference of opinion within both the senate and the house. The majority of the house seem to favor free hides, while the advocates of a duty on hides in the senate are in the lead. The lumber schedule is another regarding which the difference of opinion is nearly balanced.

DID ELLA GINGLES DREAM HER STORY?

That Is What Boarding House Friend Says.

Chicago, July 9.—The sensational trial of Ella Gingles, the young Irish lace-maker, is nearing a close. The hearing has been marked by strong evidence, both for and against her. P. H. O'Donnell, the girl's lawyer, and Captain P. D. O'Brien of the detective bureau, who investigated the girl's first story about being attacked in the Wellington hotel Feb. 16, accused each other of underhanded methods in the case.

Captain O'Brien testified that during a conversation he had with Attorney O'Donnell, the lawyer said he did not believe some parts of the girl's story.

Miss Belle Carston, who was a boarding house friend of the Gingles girl, testified that on Jan. 11, the girl told her of having a dream about being attacked and locked in a room and subjected to indignities. The testimony of the police captain and of nurses at the Frances Willard hospital, where Miss Gingles was taken after the Wellington hotel incident, showed glaring discrepancies in the girl's various stories.

With the rebuttal testimony a new sensation is promised in the story of Agnes May Barrette, the young woman against whom Miss Gingles has directed her narratives. Miss Barrette wept loudly in court when Assistant State's Attorney B. J. Short said that justice would be done her.

John Worth Kern, Democratic nominee for vice president last fall, called upon State's Attorney Wayman. Mr. Kern has acted in several matters for Thomas Taggart, former chairman of the Democratic national committee, whose name has been brought into the record of this case repeatedly by Miss Gingles. Mr. Kern said his visit had nothing to do with this matter, explaining that he had come on a civil case. He did not say why it was necessary to go to the criminal court on a civil case.

Under Ban of the Church.

London, July 9.—By a vote of 224 to 24, the church council, which was attended by the leading bishops, clergy and laymen of the Church of England, declared that marriage to a deceased wife's sister, recently legalized in this country, was contrary to the moral rules of the church and to the principles of the scriptures. Furthermore, the use of the prayer book in the service solemnizing such marriages was forbidden in the strongest terms.

Negro Slain by Policeman.

Cincinnati, July 9.—In a revolver duel in this city Patrolman George C. Burt shot and fatally wounded Henry Jackson, a negro. It was charged that Jackson had been stealing lead pipe from a house on Hopkins street, and when the officer attempted to place him under arrest he fled and fired several times at the officer. Patrolman Burt fired three shots at the negro, two of the missiles lodging in his stomach.

The wets carried Bristol, Va., in a local option election by a majority of 38.

MAY INVITE THE LOCAL LAWYERS

Talk of Making Annual Picnic of Shelby Bar Association a Tri-County Affair.

BARRISTERS ENJOY BIG TIME

Judge Sparks Attended—Hack Was Victim of a Practical Joke.

The picnic of the Shelby county bar at the Flat Rock cave Wednesday was attended by most of the legal lights of the city, says the Shelbyville Democrat. The outing was keenly enjoyed by the men whose accustomed work is that of poring over many dry and dusty volumes.

There was an abundance of fish and frogs on hand. Lennie Williams as chief cook, ably assisted by "Skinny" Miles and Ed Henry had been in charge of the work of capturing and preparing the feast. Lennie, who is an ex-saloon keeper showed well his ability to wait on the bar.

Elmer Bassett, having eaten more frogs than anyone else, won the jumping contest. Judge Hord is feeling under the weather today, the result of too much of the combination of fish, frogs, lemonade and butter-milk.

The marksmanship of some of the mighty hunters of the bar was put to a severe test in the afternoon. Elmer Bassett, Judge Sparks and John Cheney took Albert Wray down stream for a short distance. Albert spied a frog sitting on some drift. He called for the rifle and took a shot at the jumper. The frog failed to move, and Wray gave up in disgust after one shot. Urus Tindall later in the afternoon took two shots at the frog, but as evidently he failed to disturb him, Urus concluded that he had lost his pristine skill with the weapon.

The climax came when ex-Prosecutor Hack was taken down the stream. As he trudged along with the rifle, he suddenly called out for the rest to stop. "Look there," said Charley in an excited manner, "there's a big frog. Why he's about the size of a calf." Charley took a shot at him. "Just a little above him, Charley," said Cheney. "Well what do you know about that," said Hack. "Now, I'll get him." He took a second shot. "Just a little to the left," said Cheney. "What do you know about that?" asked Hack. "I know I'll get him this time." The third shot failed to disturb the green and yellow target. "I saw him bat his eyes that time," said Judge Sparks. "You didn't miss him far." "I'll blow his bloody head off," said Hack bringing the rifle to his shoulder for the fourth time. Hack fired. The frog failed to move. The spectators burst into a roar of laughter. Hack saw something was wrong and refused to do any more shooting. As a matter of fact he had hit the frog about four times, but the bullets had glanced off. It was an iron frog which Elmer Bassett earlier in the day had sneaked into the drift.

It was suggested yesterday that it would be a good thing if in the future the annual picnic would be enjoyed by members, not only of the Shelby county bar, but of Rush and Decatur bars as well, the relationship among these bars being of a close and friendly nature. A committee was appointed to take up this proposition with our friends from Decatur and Rush counties, and it is thought that the next annual picnic will be one in which the three bars will participate.

THE BLACK HAND WAS IN EVIDENCE

placed under arrest. The colored girls claim that Craig and another white young man from Connersville had telephoned them and made an engagement. The boys came through the alley and went in the back way of the kitchen. The Brown girl made some startling charges against one of the boys and says the Solsberry girl was largely instrumental in getting her mixed up in the affair. She says she fought one of the young men off when he made improper advances toward her and declares had it not been for her strength he would have accomplished his purpose. She further charges the Solsberry girl with putting her hand over her mouth when she started to scream and make an outcry. It was in this compromising position that Frank Brown found his sister with the white boys when he tore off a screen and climbed in a window. With a revolver in his hand he halted the fellows as they tried to beat a hasty exit. Then a scuffle followed. During the melee, an office knife was brought into play but no one was cut unless it was the Connersville chap who escaped. Brown pounced upon Craig and struck him a blow which staggered him. They went to a clinch and wrestled about the room. The telephone was knocked loose from its holdings during this part of the performance. Craig sustained a painful scalp wound and bled profusely. It is thought that his head struck the telephone as the wound does not look like it was made with a knife. Another instant and all had cleared out of the place. When Brown climbed in the window someone was stationed outside to come to his assistance if necessary. But he succeeded in handling the affair by himself. When one of the fleeing young men rushed out and down the alley a shot was fired at them by the party who stood sentinel during the kitchen shower. The sum and total of the excitement might be summed up tersely, thus: "Just another case of the Black Hand employed at a critical moment."

Frank Brown was turned loose this afternoon. To a Republican man he told the story of the mysterious battle. He said he had been in waiting outside the window for some time; had taken off his shoes and climbed in the window before they knew of his presence. Then with a gun he made them all stand still. He says he first struck the Connersville young man who made his escape through the window. Then he turned his attention to Craig. Brown says he hit at least fifty times. Many of the blows were struck with the butt end of his gun.

All the parties concerned were taken into Mayor Cowing's court today, and in the presence of Deputy Prosecutor Morgan and City Marshal Price, told their stories. In the main, all accounts were alike with the exception of some minor detail. The Brown girl did not appear much concerned when brought into court. While the officers were disposing of another matter she sat calmly and coolly looking out a window singing "I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now" and later whistled a few bars from "Are You Sincere." It was rumored about the city that she had implicated a number of prominent young men in scandals that would make Pittsburgh appear like Zion City in comparison with Rushville, if what she says is true. But it is thought that for the most part, it is merely unfounded rumors that grew out of some comedy and sport in conversation which followed in the wake of the sensation.

Almost as Big as Samson, the Goat Eater.

Talk about a snake story—here is one that will give you the "shivers." "Jasper Siler, a well known Rush county farmer living a few miles south of Knightstown, killed a monster black snake the other day, which measured eleven feet and four inches in length."

COUNTY LINE ROAD ARGUMENT HEATED

Remonstrators Occupy the Afternoon With Witnesses—Not Much Accomplished.

WILL BE FINISHED TOMORROW

Much interest was shown in the argument over the Elwell county line road between Rush and Fayette counties today, so much in fact that the commissioners' court was moved to the assembly room in order to accommodate the large crowd attracted there. Nothing was accomplished this morning and the remonstrators occupied the afternoon with their witnesses. Their only objection seemed to be that they thought the road would cost too much. It is thought that the case will not be finished before tomorrow evening, as the petitioners have several witnesses and the attorneys will occupy some time in the closing arguments. The commissioners of Fayette and Rush counties are hearing the case in joint session.

SECRETARY BARNARD HOME.

New Castle Courier: Ralph W. Barnard, private secretary to Congressman Barnard, arrived home at noon Thursday from Washington for a short visit. He reports his father in good health, although he is not enjoying the warm weather siege in Washington as a result of the House having to wait for the tariff bill from the Senate. It is not believed in Washington that Congress will adjourn until about August 1.
